

BoomeRAGING

From LSD to OMG

The man the Oregonian calls “the thinking man’s comic,” Will Durst, is elated to announce his first show since the celebrated “Elect to Laugh,” which ran for 41 weeks at the Marsh, San Francisco, last year.

“BoomerAging: From LSD to OMG” is a tribute to the history, growth, joys, achievements and the looming doom of the Baby Boom Generation in today’s youth-obsessed society.

Durst explores the Boomers’ revolutions, evolutions and self-inflicted contusions while detailing how to lose the fear of aging and embrace the wrinkles. He also promises to shamelessly stroke the egos of the self-described Most Important Generation through such segments as

- Racing From the Shadow of a Mushroom Cloud
- The Brightside of Xtreme Maturity
- Hope I Die Before I Get... Oh, Too Late, Plug Me In
- Everything You Wanted To Know About Decrepitude But Were Afraid To Ask
- Hey You Punks, Get Off My Wireless Router.

It’s a celebration of the maturation of the Boomer Nation. Every Tuesday at the Marsh San Francisco starting May 7, 2013.

Special Note: Due to the graphic nature and startlingly archaic technology, children under the age of 40 will not be admitted unless accompanied by a guardian or if they bring a note. We apologize for any inconvenience.